Nation's Largest Commercial Painting Contractor Opens Denver Office to Cover Mountain Region Company Plans Unique Economic Stimulus Plan

Livermore, CA – January 7, 2010 – Turman Commercial Painters, (www.turmaninc.com) the nation's largest privately owned commercial painting contractor is expanding its operations to Denver. The California based commercial painting contractor will cover both national and local business in the Mountain Region from its new Denver office. In addition to its Denver office, the company also plans to carry out its "People's Stimulus" in Denver – a plan using rare $2 bills to help stimulate the local economy.

Turman Commercial Painters has chosen an office at 5475 Peoria Street to house its new expansion. The office will be used to accommodate estimators, oversee its crew of painters for Mountain Region client jobs and handle customer service, a hallmark of the firm. The office officially opened in December and is staffed initially by Estimator Torrey Hartley. Hartley anticipates the office will grow over the next 18 months to 3 – 4 estimators and 40 – 50 field staff. "Denver is a great hub for the Mountain Region because of its central location, access to transportation, attractive cost of living, great quality of life and skilled workforce," says Hartley a Colorado native happy to be back in the state after 15 years.

In addition to the new office, the firm is planning to carry out its much talked about "People's Stimulus" in the Denver area. Company President Dave Theobald will shortly send Hartley a stack of rare $2 bills which Hartley will spend in the local community. Each bill will have a "People's Stimulus" sticker and the organization's website address to inspire others to join in and Pay it Forward by spending in the Denver community. People's Stimulus is a national program promoted by Turman Commercial Painters that has inspired an investment of nearly $200,000 into local communities. One local Denver business is already on board with the People's Stimulus. Doc's of Denver a carpet and upholstery cleaning company offers their customers a 10% cash discount upon payment, which the customer gets back in $2 bills. Says Doc's of Denver owner Steve Small "It is our effort to help stimulate the local economy and show our appreciation to the Denver community for allowing us to provide our services since 1971." Agrees Turman President Dave Theobald, "the People's Stimulus program has been our way of giving back to our employees and the communities in which we do business. We are happy the program has already spread to Denver and look forward to contributing locally."

Turman Commercial Painters specializes in commercial paint work including rebranding, tenant improvement, building exterior, retail, medical, multi-family and hospitality jobs. Notable clients include AT&T, Starbucks, US Bank, Chase, Smith Barney and others. Projects with national distinction completed by the company include Oracle Arena, the Inn at Suncadia Resort, Lawrence Livermore National Lab and the Sir Francis Drake Hotel renovation. "We look forward to being an active member of the Denver Chamber of Commerce and the business community," says Hartley.
